

Free legal conferences available

Harvest owner Tristan Grier, work experience law student Rebecca and Jonathon de Vere Tyndall. Photo supplied.

Victoria Cosford

Free-of-charge pro bono law conferences will once again be offered by Federal-based solicitor Jonathon de Vere Tyndall.

Held at Harvest Cafe in Newrybar, their aim is to help people in need with legal problems like bankruptcy, loss of home and job disputes.

Both commence at 10am and will be held on Monday

December 13 and Monday December 20.

These cafe conferences proved enormously successful last year, when Jonathon conducted a series of eight in all, totalling 60 one-on-one sessions.

According to a survey he conducted afterwards, the 'overwhelming response' was that they had been of definite benefit to those attending with legal problems, giving them a better idea as to how to resolve their legal issues. Jonathon told The Echo that 'most surveyed found that their happiness was enhanced'.

He said that 'Christmas is a time of giving but it is also a time of great stress financially and with family issues. I am always busy at Christmas time unfortunately'.

For further information and bookings call Jonathon on 6688 2492 or 0439 651 813.